

Waterless Lithography at Newcastle Printmakers Workshop Inc

13th & 14th November 2010

This was a very lively workshop with the nine women participants producing great results despite the heatwave conditions. We were made most welcome, had lots of fun and met some outstanding women who just happened to be printmakers!

Work drying on the racks

The Newcastle Printmakers have their own free-standing, workshop in Adamstown. It is a community based group of printmakers who work in a variety of media. The studio has been running for more than 30 years.

For information about the Newcastle Printmakers contact: valerie.vincent@bigpond.com

The printmakers made us feel very much at home in their well equipped studio.

Workshop in progress

In the evenings we headed for the stunning harbour to cool down and watch the tugs bringing the container ships in to the wharves

